

Your Cultural Resources Training: Implementation & Compliance with Governor's Executive Order 05-05

The Squaxin Island Tribe, The Governors Office of Indian Affairs and the Department of Archaeology and Historic Preservation are proud to present this daylong training on compliance with the Governor Gregoire's Executive Order on Archaeological and Cultural Resources 05-05.

The training will be held at the Little Creek Casino, at Kamilche (Shelton) Washington, November 14th from 9am to 4pm.

Featured speakers are, Dr. Allyson Brooks State Historic Preservation Officer; Craig Bill, Executive Director of the Governors Office of Indian Affairs; Rhonda Foster, Squaxin Island Tribal Historic Preservation Officer; Dr. Rob Whitlam, Washington State Archaeologist; Larry Ross, Squaxin Island Tribal Archaeologist; Matthew Sterner, Transportation Archaeologist; Michael Houser, National Register Coordinator and Russell Holter, Compliance Specialist with the Department of Archaeology and Historic Preservation.

This intensive training was specially prepared to meet Governor Gregoire's requirement of personnel training in Cultural Resources for State agencies with Capital Construction budgets. State employees who are involved in planning, engineering, program or project management, and those who work in environmental compliance are encouraged to attend.

Registration is $60.00 for the daylong training and includes a traditional Pacific Northwest lunch of baked salmon or steamer clams along with salads, rolls, desserts and beverages.

Directions: From I-5 North or South take exit 104. Follow the signs for SR 101 North (Shelton and Port Angeles). Take the SR 108 exit (McCleary and Aberdeen). Turn left, and go under SR 101. The entrance into Little Creek Casino is the first left turn.

For registration information, contact your Human Resources Department. The DOP training code is 01-03-SP15. Non-government employees need to arrange payment directly through DOP by calling 360-664-1921.
